Judge to consult doctors

Written questions for Nixon are a possibility

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica proposed today that written questions be submitted to former President Richard M. Nixon in lieu of having him testify at the Watergate cover-up trial.

Sirica opened the day's court session by asking attorneys for the five defendants whether they had any objection to his contacting the doctors who examined Nixon last week to ask whether the former president is well enough to answer written questions.

The court-appointed panel of three doctors had reported that Nixon would not be well enough to appear even at a question-and-answer session in his home in California until Jan. 6. That would be well beyond the expected conclusion of the trial.

None of the lawyers had any objection to making an inquiry of the panel and Sirica sent his law clerk to contact Dr. Charles A. Hufnagal, the chairman of the panel.

But chief prosecutor James F. Neal expressed reservations about allowing Nixon to answer written questions, saying "we have had a number of statements about Watergate from the former president, none of which was satisfactory."

He did not, however, express any opposition to calling the doctors.

The judge's suggestion came as H. R. Haldeman returned to the stand for a second day of cross-examination.

Haldeman said Monday that orders from Nixon prevented his telling the Watergate grand jury that the White House had a clandestine taping system.

"You didn't mention tapes and you hoped they wouldn't be revealed," said assistant prosecutor Richard Ben-Veniste Monday as he began to cross-examine Haldeman at the Watergate cover-up trial. The questioning was to continue today.

"I was under orders from the President of the United States that it would not be disclosed," said Haldeman. "It was not a matter of my hopes, it was my instructions."

But Ben-Veniste noted that Haldeman had resigned as Nixon's chief of staff two weeks before his May 14, 1973 grand jury appearance.

"I still considered myself subject to orders given to me during the term of my service to the President of the Unite States," Haldeman replied.

The 48-year-old Haldeman is charged with John N. Mitchell, John D. Ehrlichman, Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson of conspiring to derail official investigations into the Watergate break-in.

Only a tight handful of White House aides, including Haldeman, knew about the White House taping system until Alexander P. Butterfield disclosed it during Senate Watergate testimony on July 16 last year.

Ben-Veniste had brought out that Haldeman told the grand jury that he wanted to be "candid, volunteering and help out" but that he said there were no records he could provide except his telephone logs.

"I think you testified there were no other records on the face of the earth that would reflect contacts with other people," said Ben-Veniste. "But you didn't mention tape recordings, did you Mr. Haldeman?"

"No sir," was the reply.

Ben-Veniste, a persistent cross-examiner who drew frequent rebukes from the judge for interrupting the witness, asked Haldeman whether he and the President had not discussed "a way you could evade giving truthful answers to the Senate (Watergate) committee."

"No sir," said Haldeman.

Ben-Veniste asked if he didn't discuss the use of "I don't recall" as a device to duck tough questions.

"I don't recall," said Haldeman.

The prosecutor read from a transcript of a conversation Haldeman had with Nixon and John W. Dean III on March 21, 1973 when Haldeman said, "You can refuse to talk ... you can say you forgot, too, can't you?"

Dean agreed that could be done, running the risk of being accused of perjury and Nixon added: "That's right, just be damned sure you say I don't remember, I can't recall."

The jury had heard the tape of that crucial conversation. Haldeman said he remembered the reference but explained: "That was not a discussion of evading telling the truth, it was questioning on my part as for giving testimony at various forums."

Agreement reached on nuclear weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new U.S.-Soviet strategic arms agreement allows both countries to continue costly nuclear weapons buildups over the next decade, President Ford has acknowledged.

In a news conference Monday night, Ford said the accord, worked out last week in Siberia with Soviet Communist Party Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, allows each country 2,400 long-range missiles and bombers.

Of that quota, both nations can place multiple warheads — MIRVs — on 1,320 missiles.

Although the President said this agreement "put a cap on the arms race," he described a situation in which both countries have great flexibility in increasing the number of MIRV missiles as well as the lifting power of each missile — "throw-weight" in military-diplomatic jargon.

For instance, the Soviet Union has about 2,200 long-range missiles, none of which is believed to carry multiple warheads. Moscow can and is expected to install MIRV warheads on up to the 1,320-missile limit.

The United States already has 822 of its 1,710 offensive missile force carrying multiple warheads. Ford made it clear Monday night the United States will push its MIRV program to the limit.

"We do have an obligation to stay up to that ceiling," he said of the figures worked out at the Vladivostok summit. "The budget that I will recommend will keep our strategic forces either up to or aimed at that objective."

Ford's claims for the agreement, which will run from 1975 to 1985 once technical details are worked out, came under immediate challenge from Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

In a telephone interview, Jackson said that "the total number is way out of order when you count the thousands of nuclear warheads that will be produced."

The Russians will be able to build "a new missile system when they don't have any now," he said, referring to the current lack of Soviet MIRVs. In addition, the Washington Democrat said the cost of meeting the ceilings will be extraordinary.

Ford opened the news conference by segregating topics into two categories. He dealt first with the strategic arms question and then turning to domestic matters, primarily the economy.

He repeated his assertion that inflation remains the nation's worst enemy, although acknowledging that a recession "is a serious threat that already has hurt many citizens and alarms many more."

Still, Ford challenged a growing belief among congressional Democrats that the recession should be fought by recharging the economy, possibly by increased spending.

"Our greatest danger today is to fall victim to the more exaggerated alarms that are being generated about the underlying health and strength of our economy," Ford said.

Since in his mind inflation is the "deadly, long-range enemy," Ford asked Congress to act before it adjourns later this month to cut the fiscal 1975 budget by $4.6 billion, while providing $2.6 billion for public service jobs to offset rising unemployment.

Council action unanimous

Set up sewer district

Benefit Sewer District No. 151 will now become a reality, following the City Council's unanimous vote Monday night to go ahead with the project.

The district, bounded by 28th Street on the north, Lamine Avenue on the east, 32nd Street on the south and Grand Avenue on the west, will be funded on a square foot basis paid by the residents bounded on the district.

The landowners will be assessed for 120 feet into their property line bordering on the sewer.

In past meetings the council had agreed to take $100,000 in revenue sharing funds from their 1975 budget to help fund the project.

Before the final reading and passage of the ordinance authorizing the district, Third Ward Councilman Carl Franklin asked if anyone had any comments to make about the district.

One unidentified resident said he was not pleased because his property occupied a corner of the district and he would be assessed along two sides of this property compared to most homeowners only paying for frontage. "I think you should pay for the side where you connect to the service," he said.

Another resident, Mrs. William Dick, 1402 South Warren, said she wished to go on record that she and her husband were going to pay $2,000 toward the district even though they will not be connecting to the line.

Mayor Jerry Jones stated that all residents will be treated the same and said the present plan would allow for any new development which may take place in the district.

Franklin expressed satisfaction that the present method of assessment was the best the council could do.

In other business, Second Ward Councilman Ira Knox presented to the council a new city plumbing ordinance which was read for the first time. The new code incorporates the Uniform Plumbing Code adopted by the annual conference of the International Association of Plumbing and Mechanical Officials.

The lengthy ordinance the council is proposing incorporates that code with a different set of administrative duties adopted to the city's present personnel.

The code would be administered by plumbing inspector Woodrow Garrison, who is also Sedalia building inspector.

The ordinance sets a schedule of fees for plumbing permits as well as defining the terms specified in the ordinance and the code pertaining to master, journeyman and apprentice plumbers.

The ordinance was proposed to provide for the protection of public health and safety, and registration of persons engaged in the business of plumbing. It also establishes minimum regulations for the installation, alternation or repair of plumbing and drainage systems in Sedalia.

The code incorporates two significant changes over present procedures. One would allow the use of plastic pipe in specified plumbing situations; up to now plastic pipe has been prohibited in Sedalia. The code would also permit persons who own and reside in their home to do their own plumbing work instead of being required to hire a plumber.

The council unanimously approved the first reading of the ordinance and will move for final passage at their next regular meeting, "if the plumbers agree," Franklin said.

The council also:

✔Accepted the resignation of Robert Corbett from the police department. Corbett, who had previously been a member of the Modesto, Calif., police department, said he was resigning because he was dissatisfied with the local police department, of which he had been a member slightly over two months.

"They have no effective supervisory system at all," he said. "I've never seen a department like this in my life." Corbett

Number of new bills moves toward 1,300

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri lawmakers continued introducing proposed legislation and constitutional amendments for consideration in the 1975 session today as the number of bills moved toward an expected total of more than 1,300.

As the second day of prefiling opened today, more than 300 bills, two-thirds of them in the House, have been introduced, many of them similar to ones that have failed in the past.

Reinstitution of the death penalty for certain crimes including 11 types of murder was offered in both houses along with bills to revise the state's 139-year-old criminal code, the court system, the fuel taxing laws, some election laws and portions of the corporate code.

A measure calling for the ratification of the controversial Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution made its appearance for the third straight year, but this time backers give it a better chance of passage because of some changes in the legislative makeup due to the November elections. Ratification is needed by only four more states for the amendment to go into effect.

A number of controversial pay increases for state and local officials, approved this year but vetoed by Gov. Christopher S. Bond on the grounds that the state did not have the money, were also offered again.

The House minority leader, Robert Snyder of Kirkwood, and Majority Leader Kenneth Rothman of Clayton combined in sponsoring raises for both judges and the legislators. The legislative pay boost calls for a $4,000 annual hike to $12,400.

In the realm of pay boosts for lawmakers, which is expected to meet opposition, Rep. Clarence Heflin, D-Independence, offered a bill boosting legislators' pay to $15,000 but tied it to raises of 5 to 15 per cent for all state workers making less than $12,000 a year.

Bills calling for collective bargaining for public employes, revision of the state's ineffective lobbyists regulation law, minimum jail standards, bonuses for some Vietnam-era service veterans and a minimum wage for the state were introduced.

Eight persons die in Osceola blaze

OSCEOLA, Mo. (AP)—Intense smoke and heat killed eight patients early today when a fire broke out in the north wing of the Sac-Osage Hospital.

Investigators from the state fire marshal's office and the state Division of Health prodded through the scorched debris; but John Brack, hopital administrator, said they were not able immediately to establish what caused the fire.

Members of the staff managed to rescue two patients from the burning wing.

They and most of the 10 other patients were transferred to Golden Valley Hospital at Clinton, Mo.

Brack said it was not certain but there were signs that fire broke out in the room of Riley Winn, 68, a long-time hardware and farm implement dealer at Osceola. Winn was among the eight who perished.

Another who died was Mrs. Thomas M. Lowry, 66, wife of the St. Clair County clerk.

Two other victims from Osceola were Mrs. Neva Wheeler, 70, and Miss Frances Zeiler, 52.

The others were Audra Moore, 71, and Julia McKinnon, 77, from Collins, Mo.; Simmie O. Pine, 75, Lowry City, Mo., and Mrs. Geraldine May, 54, Wheatland, Mo.

Brack said all were in th acutely ill status, but he did not have a report immediately on their illnesses or conditions.

The fire broke out about 12:30 a.m. and Brack said most of the damage was confined to the north wing, although there is smoke and water damage to other sections.

Within hours after the fire, the hospital had its emergency room in operation and staffed for 24-hour sevice. Brack said other parts outside the north wing will be reopened as soon as they are cleansed and are approved by state health authorities.

The hospital was opened in November of 1969 and is beside Missouri 13 at the northeast edge of Osceola, a town of about 875 on the north edge of the Ozarks in southwest Missouri. It is about 60 miles north of Springfield and 100 miles southeast of Kansas City.

Interest rate hike effort is defeated

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—A second attempt to increase the interest rate limit for small loans failed by one vote today as the Missouri Senate returned to work on a measure designed to loosen the tight housing and construction market in the state.

Sen. Albert Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, tried to raise the small loan limit—under which 26.6 per cent a year in interest can be charged—from $500 to $800.

Sen. William Waters, D-Liberty, and Larry Marshall, R-Columbia, said it would not help the housing recession and would add to inflation.

But Spradling said, "The consumer finance industry is probably at its lowest ebb in history."

Debate continued on the bill, which would raise Missouri's interest rate limit of 8 per cent a year for loans over $500. Debate was broken off Monday when Sen. Earl Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, threatened to filibuster unless the matter was postponed.

In other action, Marshall introduced a bill allowing persons 18 or over to sell or assist in selling nonintoxicating beer (or with only a 3.2 per cent alcoholic content). The age limit now is 21.

Last week, Spradling failed in trying to set a 15 per cent annual rate for loans between $500 and $2,500. Marshall's bill is a substitute for one defeated last week.

His bill eliminates the 8 per cent ceiling on home mortgages and other larger loans, but was amended to keep the ceiling at 10 per rent for farmers and 10 per cent for the yield on bonds sold for urban redevelopment.

The bill is an attempt to ease the tight housing market by making loans easier to get. Mortgage bankers and savings and loan institutions have been reluctant to loan money at Missouri's 8 per cent interest rate while they can get a higher interest by lending outside the state.

Spradling succeeded in deleting a section requiring reports on the housing and lending markets to be filed with the Department of Consumer Affairs, Regulation and Licensing.

Alternate safety means to be studied

Members of the city park board building and grounds committee, park director Jack Couts and recreation director Roscoe Righter were named to investigate alternative measures which would provide more safety around the Liberty Park lagoon without fencing the area.

The action came at the regular monthly board meeting Monday night.

"We're not in favor of fencing," Righter said. "We will be investigating ways to maintain the aesthetic beauty and usefulness of the lagoon while providing a strong measure of safety." The committee, he said, will make a recommendation to the board at its next meeting Jan. 6.

In the meantime, Righter explained, he, Couts and the committee members will research various safety measures other than fencing that have been implemented in other cities.

The impetus for increasing the safety of the lagoon came after the drowning a month ago of three-year-old Edward Carwile, who was visiting the park on a Head Start outing.

In other business, the board decided to accept bids for the concessions contract for the park department's six concession stands in the city. Under the current contract, which expires in January, held by Virginia Cope, the city gets 15 per cent of the profit. The contract, which calls for a one-year lease and three-year option agreement, will be awarded at the board's January meeting, it was indicated.

Righter also reported to the board that participants in the park's judo, girl's tumbling, adult swimming and four arts classes have compiled a total of 1,940 activity hours since September. A total of 2,785 activity hours have been compiled since September by members of the women's volleyball and men's basketball teams.

UMW brass is optimistic over outcome of voting

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — United Mine Workers officials expressed otpimism today that a new contract would be approved by the rank and file, as scattered returns indicated a slim majority favoring the pact.

UMW President Arnold Miller had asked locals not to release preliminary vote totals "so as not to prejudice those still voting."

But scattered returns representing some 16,000 miners, about 13 per cent of the union's 120,000 working bituminous coal miners, showed the agreement was gaining approval from about 52 per cent of those voting.

District 12 in Illinois reported a vote of 4,194 for the contract and 4,368 against. But a UMW spokesman said the margin of defeat in that district was not as large as had been anticipated.

A union spokesman in Washington said the UMW expected to have enough results in by Thursday afternoon or evening to be able to make an announcement.

Early figures in eight Pennsylvania locals showed 683 votes for and 568 against the contract — representing a 58.4 per cent turnout in those locals. In another local, in Cambria County, the vote was 277 against, 160 for.

But in Alabama's District 20, a union spokesman said the vote was 2,130 to 995, with the largest local in the district still out.

Snowstorms hampered voting Monday and UMW President Arnold Miller ordered an extension through Wednesday. A union spokesman said the final results probably would not be available until Thursday.

A union spokesman said that even if the new pact is ratified, the earliest work could resume in UMW mines would be at midnight Sunday.

The UMW pulled its 120,000 members out of the pits Nov. 12 when the old contract expired, halting work at mines that produce 70 per cent of the nation's bituminous coal.

The strike has brought on layoffs for another 25,000 workers whose jobs are dependent on coal, especially employes in the steel and rail industries.

The miners, who earned $42 to $50 a day under the old contract, are voting on a new pact agreed upon by the UMW's 38-member bargaining council and the Bituminous Coal Operators' Association.

It calls for a 64 per cent increase in wages and benefits over the three-year contract period. It also includes numerous mine safety provisions to which Miller had given first priority in bargaining.

Value of planned gold sale in $84.4 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will sell two million ounces of gold, valued officially at $84.4 million, from its government-held gold reserves, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said today.

Simon also said the government will not ask for a postponement of the right for Americans to buy gold after Dec. 31.

He said the government gold will be sold at a public auction on Jan. 6 and that sales would be in quantities of 400-oz bars.

The General Services Administration will issue formal invitations for bids in about 10 days, Simon said.

The secretary also disclosed in testimony before the House Banking and Currency subcommittee that the government will consider selling additional gold in the future, although probably in smaller amounts.

Simon made clear the Jan. 6 sale of gold is directly connected to the decision of Congress to permit Americans to own gold, ending a 41-year-old ban on the private ownership of the precious metal.

He said that if the government did not sell some of its gold, an increase in gold imports would be required to meet speculative and industrial needs.

The sale of 2 million ounces will be only a small portion of the official U.S. gold supply of 276 million ounces.

Valued at $42.22 per ounce, the U.S. gold reserves are worth about $11.6 billion.

At the official price, a 400-ounce bar would cost about $16,800.

On world markets, gold has been selling for about $180 an ounce and it is likely the Treasury will sell its gold at something closer to the market price rather than the official price.

Pickets again up at some schools

DUPO, Ill. (AP)—Pickets were again posted in front of schools in Dupo, Ill. today in spite of a court order issued late Monday prohibiting the picketing and disruption of school operations.

Patrick Mudd, school superintendent, said members of Teamster Local 50 were again manning the picket lines and he added that the matter was turned over the the St. Clair County sheriff's department.

Because of the court order, Mudd said, teachers indicated they would cross the picket line to conduct classes.

Judge Joseph Cunningham issued the court order after pickets set up Monday by non-certified workers reduced teacher and pupil attendance.

Mudd said only 25 of the district's teachers crossed picket lines and that attendance among the district's 1,650 pupils was down about one-third.

Snow, sleet continue to fall

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Snow or freezing rain brought hazardous driving from the lower Great Lakes into the Northeast today, piling more weather woes on some regions still digging out from a monster weekend storm.

Heavy-snow warnings were in effect for parts of Vermont, northern and western New York and the mountains of West Virginia. Freezing-rain warnings covered parts of Ohio and Maine. Storm warnings were posted for Lake Ontario and gale warnings for Lakes Huron and Erie, the New England coast and the northern and central Pacific coast.

The season's first major snowstorm stranded thousands of motorists, or forced them to abandon their autos, in southern Michigan and adjacent sections of Ohio, where it dumped 18 to 20 inches of snow Sunday and Monday. Ranging into the Southeast, the storm piled as much as 15 inches of snow in southwest Virginia and up to 2 feet in mountain areas of West Virginia.

It also brought numerous power outages, traffic accidents and school and business shutdowns from Michigan to Maine.

But the foul weather also brought out the best in many people. In southeastern Michigan, where the heaviest snow of the century measured almost 19 inches, teenagers joined to push car after car up an interstate highway ramp. A policeman picked up a pregnant woman and rushed her to the hospital by snowmobile.

The Red Cross went into action to help the more than 11,000 persons stranded in Michigan, among an estimated 35,000 stranded there and in Ohio, Pennslyvania and Maryland.

More than 20 persons suffered fatal heart attacks in Michigan alone while shoveling snow.

Some schools and businesses which were closed from Michigan to New England and into Appalachia on Monday planned to reopen today, depending on local conditions. But many remained closed, hoping to resume operations Wednesday. Detroit public schools and many others in southeastern Michigan were among those closed again today.

Two newspapers in Michigan, the Detroit News and Wayne Daily Eagle, failed to publish Monday editions. The snow forced cancellation of state and local governmental meetings. The judge and jury failed to show up for a murder trial at Detroit's Recorders Court.

Maryland called out National Guard units to help clear snow from western parts of the state Monday and to rescue an estimated 2,000 stranded motorists.

In Kentucky, where many schools were closed Monday and today, seven children were injured in a school bus accident.

Elsewhere, light snow moved into the Pacific Northwest mountains and rain fell on the coast. More than an inch of rain fell at Portland, Ore. Light snow also spilled into the northern Plains.

In contrast, fair weather spread over areas from Southern California to Florida and into the central Plains, the middle Mississippi Valley and the upper Great Lakes region.

New reduction in emergency appropriation

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—The Senate Appropriations Committee has further reduced an emergency appropriation for the state Department of Social Services based on the need to keep a close watch on the situation involving several welfare programs.

The committee, following hearings Monday night on a $18.2 million funding measure approved by the House, cut the welfare appropriation by an additional $8.1 million after the House had slashed $7 million from the governor's original request.

The new bill, now totaling $10.2 million, will be reported to the full Senate for consideration today, but appropriations chairman Norman Merrell, D-Monticello, said he did not expect it to be taken up until Wednesday.

The committee made no changes in the amount to fund implementation of a new campaign financing law, passed by voters last month, leaving that total at $283,000. It did, however, add an additional $25,000 to the $369,000 figure to cover the cost for the special legislative session because there were additional expenses for the Senate.

Five-month hunt ends in leader's death

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A five-month hunt by 20,000 troops has ended with the death of legendary guerrilla chieftain Lucio Cabanas in a battle in the mountains of southern Mexico.

The army said 10 other guerrillas died with Cabanas on Monday; another 17 were killed in a shootout Saturday, and two soldiers were killed and five were wounded.

Cabanas, about 36, had become Latin America's best known guerrilla since the death of Che Guevara. Thin, swarthy, with dark hair and dark eyes, he was teaching sixth grade in a village north of Acapulco in 1967 when he fled to the hills after a minor school controversy ended in bloodshed.

He became a follower of another teacher-turned-rebel, Genaro Vazquez Rojas, and took over the band when Vazquez died in an automobile accident in 1972. He published a manifesto saying he sought a "socialist government" for Mexico and claimed his guerilla war in the Sierra Madre del Sur was a continuation of the 1910 peasant uprising led by Emiliano Zapata.

Appraisers will move to county to inspect property

Property appraisal in Pettis County outside Sedalia will begin this week. Employes of Continental Appraisal Co. will start inspecting property at the northern county line and progress south. County towns will be inspected this spring.

In the inspection of property, to gather information for the 1976 tax assessments, the company will use aerial maps, soil maps and interviews with owners or tennants about the property.

The County Court released a statement Tuesday morning saying that all Continental Appraisal fieldmen will carry identification signed by County Assessor Bill McCune.

Each inspection may take about 10 minutes per building. Homes and frame buildings will be inspected and the owner will be asked to sign a card showing the property has been inspected. Sketches will be made of buildings on the cards. The appraisal will be completed later this year.

Police chief's car is damaged by pellet gun

Vandels shot out the rear window and damaged the vinyl top of Police Chief William Miller's personal car, police reported Tuesday.

A pellet gun was apparently used to cause the damage and one pellet was found lodged under the top.

Chief Miller said that the incident occured while the car was parked next to the Municipal Building while he was attending Monday night's City Council meeting.

Damage to the roof of the 1973 Imperial was estimated at $130, and $75 to the window.

In other police news, $250 in clothing was stolen from a washer at the Thompson Hills Laundromat Monday night.

Ronnie Bush, 928 South Madison, reported that he left the clothes in the washer about 9:30 p.m. and returned at 10 to find them missing. Police reported that a woman at the laundry reported she had seen a couple take the clothes and drive off.

Personal items valued at $447.50 were stolen over the weekend from four ransacked tractor-trailer trucks owned by the Parkhurst Manufacturing Co., Sedalia police reported Monday.

The items belonged to drivers Leo Caseing, 44, Warsaw; Don Kirk, 28, Houstonia; and Nathan Meyer, 46, Cole Camp.

The trucks were parked inside a fenced lot on Industrial Drive. Also taken from the truck cabs were company fuel permits, it was reported.

Green Ridge woman injured in accident

A Route 2 Green Ridge couple was injured at 2:15 p.m. Monday in a two-car accident at Routes B and E, formerly ZZ, in southwest Pettis County.

Mrs. Maxine Dunn, 45, was treated for a concussion and a laceration to her right knee and kept at Bothwell Hospital for observation, a spokesman said. She was reported in satisfactory condition.

Her husband, Ollie D. Dunn, 56, was treated and released for bruises.

The accident occurred when a truck driven by Melvin R. Ray, 54, Green Ridge, failed to stop at a stop sign and pulled into the path of the Dunn vehicle, according to the Highway Patrol.

Ray was charged with careless and imprudent driving, a Patrol spokesman said.

More time is given Nebraska officials

The state of Nebraska will have 60 more days to file extradition papers in Pettis County Magistrate Court for Walter Green, 36, Sedalia. He is being held in the county jail on charges of fleeing from justice in Nebraska. The charges were filed against Green in Magistrate Court on Nov. 4.

Green was originally picked up by the sheriff's department for a misdemeanor bad check charge dating back to February.

The investigation that followed showed Green was wanted in Nebraska for a parole violation. He remains in the county jail in lieu of $3,500 bond.

Sedalian reaches century mark

One hundred years young, or so the cliche goes — another Sedalian has passed that milestone.

Mrs. Ethel Housel, Fairview Nursing Home, celebrated her century mark Sunday and all of her years have been spent in Sedalia.

Mrs. Housel, the former Miss Ethel McCluney, was a teacher in the old Franklin School, 406 West Cooper, later becoming principal.

In 1918 she transferred to Jefferson School, 305 East Chesnut, where she was principal until she married William Housel on June 3, 1925, in the Sedalia annex of the Christian Church, which was then located at Seventh and Massachusetts.

Mrs. Housel received an English degree in 1922 from Central Missouri State Teachers College, Warrensburg, where she was graduated with honors.

She was a regular lecturer to Sedalia clubs in the early 1900's on her favorite hobby — birds. In 1923 she led the fight to get street cars and taxis to journey past Third and Engineer to Jefferson school.

At that time Third Street, which had been a mud street, was made passable for public transportation by the city.

But Mrs. Housel now passes her time in the nursing home with frequent visits from her nephew and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Evert Stumpf, 611 West 32nd.

Grandmother wants to save newspapers

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is that supermarkets do not have special counters for senior citizens with mini-size packages of meat, fruit and vegetables which would help limited budgets as the regular size packages hold too much and cost too much. Being able to buy smaller quantities would allow the aged more variety in their meals. — PEARL.

DEAR POLLY — Elaine who has an iodine stain on a wood bowl will find that iodine is soluble in alcohol. I think it would be worth a try on wood. It works well on cloth, linoleum, etc. — MAE.

DEAR POLLY — Elaine should try putting cornstarch on the iodine stain on her wooden bowl. Dampen the bowl, apply the cornstarch and leave it on an hour or so. It should draw out the stain but the cornstarch must be damp. This has worked great for me on all materials. — WILMA.

DEAR FRIENDS — The finish on the wood will have something to do with the way anything works on the iodine stain. Heavy varnish or shellac would be a protection and probably make the stain easier to remove while unfinished wood has nothing to prevent the penetration of a stain. It might be very difficult to remove unless one wants to try sanding. — POLLY.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — I have saved many of the newspapers with headlines and stories relative to the momentous events of the past few months. The day will come when my grandchildren will appreciate them as they study history and current events. I would like to know the best way to preserve these papers. — MRS. E.S.

DEAR MRS. E.S. — I would roll the papers and then seal them with tape so they are completely air tight. Perhaps some reader will know of and send a different idea. — POLLY.

Guard against deceptive packaging

Look inside toy boxes before buying

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — When Richard A. Givens shops for toys and games for his two children he insists on seeing what's inside the sealed box — and he advises all consumers to do the same.

By this action, he suggests, the public can guard against such deceptions as finding only a tiny item in a large, fancy package; absence of parts or necessary additional equipment; an assembly job advertised as simple enough for a 2-year-old that really requires the knowhow of a graduate engineer; and safety warnings inside that were not specified on the outside.

"I won't buy a pig in a poke and neither should anyone else," declares Givens, who as the Federal Trade Commission's New York regional director is concerned with deceptive packaging. "Both consumer action and legal action are needed to stop questionable practices."

He reports that recent legal action in six cases against toy manufacturers for alleged deceptive practices resulted in three consent agreements and two cease-and-desist orders, with one still in the process of being settled.

"The theory of the complaints has been upheld and we have a firm legal foundation for going forward with enforcement," adds Givens, whose office serves some 20 million consumers in New York, New Jersey and Puerto Rico. "I see some improvement but more enforcement action is needed and we need help from the public to find out how much."

Though the store is not obliged to show a sample of a product in a sealed package, he points out that by refusing to shop at stores that decline to do so the purchaser can exert pressure to change the policy.

One major source of irritation, Givens explains, is a gift for a child that is opened on a holiday and can't be used because it needs batteries or glue or paint that have not been specified on the box. "It's important for children not to be disappointed. Their attitude toward the market place is formed by whether or not they've been misled."

Negative features of the item, such as necessary warnings and the fact that "it's in 400 pieces and complicated to assemble," should also appear on the package, adds Givens, who believes that the majority of manufacturers are honest.

As for the consumer who finds he has been "cheated" by getting contents that are minute in relation to the size of the package, finding parts missing or assembly more difficult than promised, he advocates taking the purchase back to the store.

"But getting an individual refund is only half the battle," he maintains. "We want the customer to let us know so we can attack the practice at the source. Keep your sales slip and records of correspondence with the store and manufacturer and send copies to the FTC office in your region, which will investigate."

Though there is no clearcut line, Givens cites as a rough guideline that if the amount of material in a package fills less than 50 per cent of the space it is indicative of deception.

"For instance," he says, "there may be a small window covering an area that's chock full of goodies, but in fact 90 per cent of the items in the box are behind that window and the other three fourths of the box contains only cardboard."

The argument has been made that people want a gift to look impressive and that manufacturers are catering to consumer taste, Givens says. "That's assuming the giver doesn't care that the recipient will be disappointed, and we don't accept that argument.

"Some manufacturers have been able to get away with it, toys being less expensive than an automobile or refrigerator so that few people complain. The practice has been perpetuated because if the price tag is under $50 many people will just absorb the loss, but people are becoming less and less tolerant of being deceived."

Givens, who practices what he preaches while shopping for his daughters, Susan, 14, and Jane, 10, was appointed to his present post in January 1971. The 42-year-old former Assistant U.S. Attorney served for four years as Chief of the Consumer Fraud Unit in the Southern District of New York.

Certificate awarded

Mrs. Carl Arnett, Green Ridge, was recently awarded the Leader's Honor Roll Certificate from the University of Missouri.

Beverly Pfeiffer, area home economist of the Pettis County Extension Center, said the certificate was given in recognition of the honoree's work in helping develop and carry out local extension programs.

As president of the Pettis County Extension Homemakers Association Council for 18 months, Mrs. Arnett has been instrumental in setting up workshops for homemakers. She instigated a fund raising program for Buena Vista nursing home and assisted in collecting summer camp funds for low-income children. Mrs. Arnett also has helped with the Cancer Drive, Therapy Center Drive, Heart Fund and United Fund for many years.

One final push

The leadership of the Sedalia-Pettis County United Way effort has decided to make a final push to make this year's goal, which stubbornly remains more than $16,000 short.

According to United Way officials, there are some 75 businesses and industries yet to be heard from. These are companies that can be expected to make a donation.

Projecting what can normally be expected from these quarters, the UW still anticipates being some $5,000 under goal, however. This year's target of $99,460 is $3,460 above last year's goal.

Obviously the laggard collections reflect, to some extent, the cutbacks registered by some local industries. If people aren't working, it's hard to get a United Way pledge from them.

Despite all this, our community is still capable of coming through in a pinch, as it has demonstrated many times in the past. We are confident that an intensive, last-ditch effort can make the goal.

The atlernative, as this year's campaign chairman has pointed out, is obvious — a cutback in essential services to the United Way agencies. And this at a time when many people need them the most.

This needn't be. An extra effort on the part of canvassers and donors alike will insure that it doesn't happen.

More from Mills

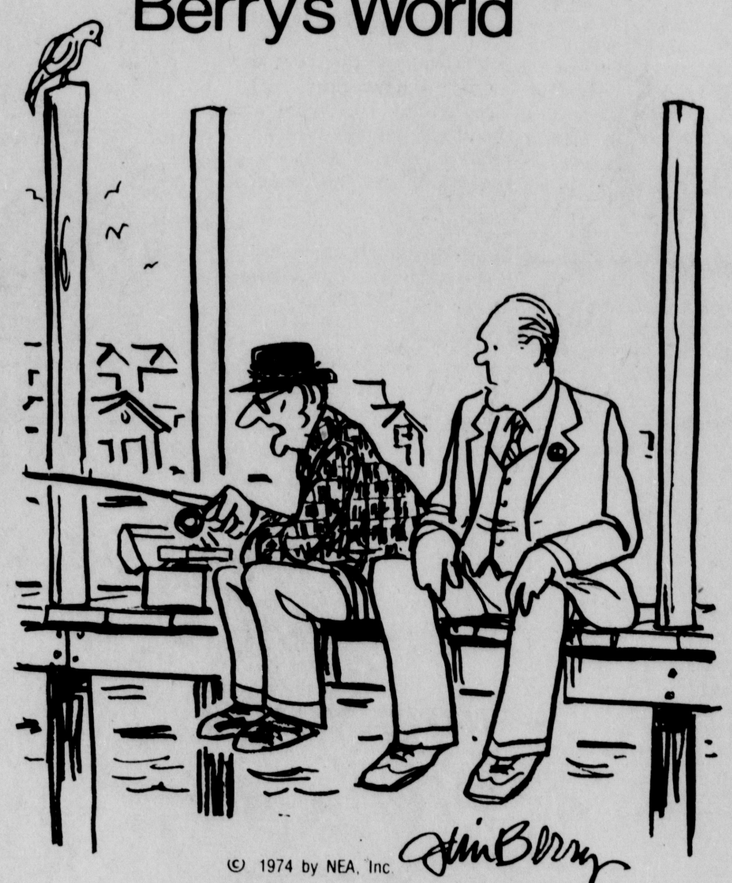

It appears that Wilbur Mills, the Sol Hurok of the burlesque circuit, has gotten over all that "embarassment" and "humiliation" he confessed to Arkansas voters before the election.

The chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee was in Boston last weekend to renew acquaintances with Annabel Battistella, who was billed as "The Tidal Basin Bombshell" at a local strip joint where she ended a two-week engagement.

Mills, reportedly teetering on his feet, even went on stage with his protege, whom he called "My little Argentina hillbilly." The congressman scoffed at the idea that he might be hurt politically. "This won't ruin me—nothing can ruin me," he said.

Except possibly a recall election.

Pot laws ripe for changes

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Proposals for the "decriminalization" of marijuana once again are being heard. The proposals make sense — so much sense that they ought to be seen as a first step toward reconsideration of public policy on the whole field of victimless crime.

Kilpatrick

Granted, "criminalize" and "decriminalize" are verbs that make a man wince, and "decriminalization" is a noun that would have driven H. L. Mencken up the wall. Yet the words are useful, all the same, in defining an area of the law in which an act is illegal but not criminal. Overparking is a familiar example. If I recall my dog Latin correctly, such an offense once was known as "malum prohibitum" as distinguished from "malum in se."

Over the past 40 years, most states have treated even the mere possession and use of marijuana as crimes — as felonies or grave misdemeanors, punishable by both fine and imprisonment. Here and there, as reason has replaced emotion, attitudes have moderated. Oregon now treats simple possession as a "violation," usually punished by a $25 fine.

Dr. Robert L. DuPont, chief White House spokesman on drug abuse, last month recommended that possession of marijuana (as distinguished from sale) be decriminalized at the federal level. His predecessor, Dr. Jerome H. Jaffe, concurred. Here in Washington, U. S. Attorney Earl J. Silbert announced that his office no longer will prosecute cases in which the evidence indicates possession of five or fewer cigarettes. Chief Judge Harold H. Greene backed him up. On Capitol Hill, Rep. Edward Koch, D-N.Y., said he would reintroduce a decriminalization bill next month. In Miami, Attorney General William Saxbe said he would welcome a change in the law.

For the most part, the recommendations draw support from liberals. Such conservatives as James Eastland, chairman of Senate Judiciary, remain stoutly opposed. Yet carefully examined, the idea of decriminalizing marijuana precisely accords with conservative thinking.

Conservative doctrine holds that to the greatest degree possible, consistent with a demonstrably overriding public interest, the individual citizen should be both free and responsible — free to do what he pleases, responsible for the harm he himself may suffer. Unless it can be demonstrated convincingly that marijuana constitutes a health hazard to society, conservatives cannot consistently support the criminal sanctions that now apply.

No such evidence has been brought forward. Even as to individual harm, medical testimony is in conflict. The notion that most or all pot smokers proceed from marijuana to heroin has been exploded. As a hazard to public health, marijuana plainly does not qualify.

There is a second, pragmatic reason for abolishing criminal prosecution of marijuana users. It is a foolish and wasteful use of the time of both policemen and judges to continue the spasmodic and capricious enforcement of the marijuana law. Half a million such arrests will be made this year. The cases divert police from such truly serious crimes as burglary and robbery, and they clog the courts with defendants — mostly young defendants — not guilty of any true offense against society. To be sure, only 2 or 3 per cent actually wind up in jail, but all of them suffer the stain of a criminal arrest on their records.

The same considerations ought to be applied to many other "crimes." Distasteful as the process may be, conservatives should re-examine their hostility to repeal of laws that make it criminal for adults to engage in homosexual relationships. Why is simple drunkenness a "crime?" Why are those who gamble still lawfully subject to arrest and imprisonment? We need to think on these things. The decriminalization of marijuana offers a fine place to start.

HEW fraud probes thwarted by panel

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — An investigation by the Health, Education and Welfare Department of more than $30 million in frauds and other ripoffs has been thwarted by the pinch-penny Senate Appropriations Committee.

At present, 81 major criminal cases involving at least $17.5 million are backlogged in the files of HEW gumshoes while the ingenious fast-buck artists who perpetrated the frauds are living like kings on the taxpayers' money.

Another 100 cases have not even been opened although HEW has respectable leads they could follow if they had the manpower. The theft from the taxpayers in these cases cannot accurately be estimated, but it may total another $10 million to $20 million.

The locales of the frauds and thefts range from small towns in Texas to the biggest cities. The pitifully small HEW investigations staff has found hints of $3 million in Medicaid chiseling by as many as 100 New York doctors.

In Los Angeles, Cleveland and Boston, probable student loan fraud by "schools" and lenders reaches close to $5 million. In Chicago, across-the-board frauds are believed to exist in health aid programs and embezzlement has been discovered in HEW grants.

In Atlanta, frauds and embezzlements in grants, student loan frauds, cheating on health and rehabilitation programs and other crimes by supposedly respectable businessmen, social workers and health program directors may total $5 million.

A confidential report provided to the Senate Appropriations Committee by HEW complains that "inadequate investigative capability has dictated that investigative action (on Medicaid) be taken by state agencies although the predominant source of funding comes from federal funds."

On the student loan programs, where fraud may total $15 million and defaulted loans may soon run to $400 million a year, the HEW document is even more blunt on the need to supplement the tiny 10-man staff of trained investigators.

"The lack of OIS (HEW's Office of Investigations and Security) investigative personnel," the document reads, "precludes development of a complete study and adequate administrative inquiry to locate all matters of fraud."

Yet, the Senate committee knocked off 12 sleuths for HEW's investigations unit and specified that "no funds shall be used to expand the HEW 'internal security' unit."

Actually, the Sentate report is a cheap shot in more ways than one. The "internal security" unit also has been called a "plumbers unit" by suspicious Senate staffers. In fact, it is neither. Our investigation shows it is staffed by veteran government investigators, some of whom were hired during the Truman era.

Shorthanded as it is, the HEW investigations unit has obtained three indictments and has recovered $1.3 million in federal funds from fraud artists. Most of the unit's cases are investigated in cooperation with the FBI.

As a result of the Senate stinginess, more than 200 HEW contractors, grantees and lending institutions are believed to be robbing the taxpayers blind. In the case of social rehabilitation frauds, the thieves have even been robbing the blind blind.

Footnote: Harley Dirks, staff chief for the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on HEW, stoutly defended his recommendation to deny HEW more investigators. His cuts have nothing to do, he insisted, with the fact that his wife, Ruth, works for one of the HEW offices now under investigation by the HEW sleuths.

MASKED IDENTITY: A mysterous federal intelligence unit is buying thousand of dollars worth of masks and face molds from a California make-up firm.

The purchases so far include $1,500 worth of "custom sculptured" nose molds, $4,000 in "latex appliances" for four facial types, and $4,200 in artificial face molds. The detailed masks include scars, bald heads and other lifelike details.

When the order was first placed, the firm was told the odd Halloween assortment was for the FBI. But a spokesman there earnestly insisted the bureau knew nothing about the purchases. At the postal boxes in Washington, D.C., to which masks and bills were delivered, a clerk let slip that "those are all CIA boxes."

The payments were made to the firm, however, by checks drawn on the U.S. Treasury from a Pentagon account, we were told.

A letter from prison

I have a problem that I feel should be called to the attention of the public. It is about the State Correctional Center for Women, located at Tipton, Mo.

I believe if women are being sentenced like men, that we have a right to be heard and not shoved to the background. Now if you don't mind, I would like to bring out some of the problems that we have here.

✔ The pay the women receive here for doing their detail is very little to what the men receive at the other correctional centers for men. Example: a cook at Jeff City for men is paid $25 a month ... a woman at Tipton is paid $10 a month. This is the same on all details.

✔ ... There isn't any recreational facility here for the women. But the men at the correctional centers have very nice facilities.

✔ ... The correctional center here is overly crowded and they don't have any place to put new women being brought in here.

✔ ... The hole where an inmate is put for punishment ... is very cold, damp and has rodents down there. The facilities are very much out-dated.

✔ We don't have a qualified dietician here. We need well-prepared and balanced diets. The sugar diabetics and others who have medical diet problems suffer for not having qualified personnel and cooks preparing the food.

I hope that some attention to this matter will be brought to the public's attention. I thank you in advance for your time.

Washington prepares for visit by Kissinger

WASHINGTON — We're having tremendous excitement in the nation's capital this week. There is a rumor going around that Secretary of State Henry Kissinger may visit Washington, D.C. Officially State Department spokesmen are denying it. One assistant secretary told me, "There would be no reason for Mr. Kissinger to come to the United States at this time." But despite the denials, preparations are going ahead for the secretary of state's visit.

Buchwald

A cleaning woman at the State Department told me she had been ordered to take the sheets off the furniture in Kissinger's office, and two of Kissinger's secretaries have been seen at the hairdresser.

Painters have been sprucing up government buildings for several weeks, and Kissinger's security men have been checking out the State Department halls for the last four days.

When I confronted the assistant secretary with all these facts, he finally admitted that there was a possibility that Kissinger might indeed visit Washington. "The reason why we haven't publicized it is that Mr. Kissinger might change his mind at the last minute and fly over the city on his way to Paris. Then people would be needlessly disappointed."

The assistant secretary said that they had been making plans for the Kissinger visit for months. "He, of course, will meet with President Ford while he's here as they have many things of mutual interest to discuss.

"After their meeting the President will host a luncheon to introduce Mr. Kissinger to other members of his Cabinet. Following the lunch we have arranged a special tour of the State Department for the secretary. Since this is such a special occasion we plan to give State Department employes the afternoon off so they will have an opportunity to see Mr. Kissinger in the flesh. You can imagine the interest here of our people who have read so much about this man but have never seen him.

"Mr. Kissinger will then visit his office and have his picture taken seated behind his own desk. After the photos, a cocktail party will be held where Mr. Kissinger will be introduced to foreign ambassadors stationed in Washington.

"Then we've arranged for him to go to the Kennedy Center because he told one of our people in Peking that if he ever came to Washington he wanted to see it."

"Will Mr. Kissinger visit with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee while he's here?" I asked.

"If he's still in the country he will. His people have warned us that he may not be able to stay for more than 24 hours, and since this is just a courtesy visit they didn't want us to overbook him. We do know that President Ford has asked him to stay an extra day, but so far this is still up in the air."

"Why do you think Henry Kissinger is visiting Washington, D.C., at this time?"

"Well in the last few months he's been in London, Paris, New Delhi, Damascus, Cairo, Tel Aviv, Tokyo, Moscow, Seoul, Peking and Vladivostok, and many people in this country felt he had been ignoring the United States. After all, we are a major power, but no one considered us one because Mr. Kissinger had never been here. Since President Ford's personal prestige was at stake, we persuaded the Kissinger people that a visit at this time would be a feather in the President's cap. When Mr. Kissinger said he'd stop off in Washington it was, for all of us in the State Department, a dream come true."

On the move

Jeff Cole (Randall Carver), a college dropout, keeps on the move during his desperate search for a meaning to life in the new Billy Graham movie, "A Time to Run." The picture, which deals with the problems facing a young man, his girlfriend and a family ready to fall apart, opens at the Fox Theater Wednesday night.

Exchange student guest at meeting of Rotarians

Miss Marie Elena Moscoso Borja, an American Field Study student from Cuenca Avuay, Ecuador, gave members of the Sedalia Rotary Club a birdseye view of her country at noon Monday at Ramada Inn.

Miss Borja is a senior in the Tipton High School and is making her home with the Roscoe Gibson family in Tipton during the 10 months she will be in the U.S. Mrs. Gibson was seated at the head table during the luncheon and program.

The speaker was introduced by Fred Davis, program chairman for December.

In other club activity, president Bill Hopkins called on Everette Wood, who told of the founding of a Future Farmers of America Chapter by State Fair Community College this year, and the need for a bred gilt program whereby a bred gilt would be given to a qualifying student, who in turn would donate one of the pigs from the litter to carry on the program. Club members unanimously voted a contribution of $250 so the new FFA Chapter could establish such a program.

Larry McRoy reported the members of the Rotary Board endorsed financial help to the Sedalia Head Start program in its effort to secure chain link fencing for a playground area at the Anthony Buckner Apartments. The club voted unanimously to donate $150 to the project.

Merle Vaughan, a member of the rural-urban committee, presented Larry Wilson, a guest for the meeting, who with his father operates 1,200 acres of grain producing land in the Sedalia area. Vaughan explained that during the winter months it was the plan of his committee to invite 12 prominent farmers to Rotary meetings in a program aimed at better acquaintainship between Rotary members and those engaged in agriculture.

James Hamilton, Sedalia insurance and real estate businessman, was inducted as a new member by his sponsor, Jack Blackwell. Mrs. Hamilton was a guest of the club for the occasion.

Robert Hoskins, chairman of the social committee, announced more than 100 members and their wives and guests would attend the Rotary Christmas Dinner Monday evening at the Holiday Inn, beginning with a social half-hour at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 7. Hoskins reported that a feature of the Christmas party program would be the honoring of Arthur Hoffman, the club's oldest member, who has held club membership since 1922 and who was its president 40 years ago. Entertainment for the affair will be furnished by the SFCC Roadrunners singers and dancers.

Hoskins presented a plaque to LeRoy Iuchs, recognizing him as Rotarian for the month of November for his outstanding work for the club.

Guests for the meeting were Ron Albaugh, Springfield, with Dr. Ron Shuler; William Baron, Marshall, with Robert Hartzler; James Moore, Sedalia, with Aubrey Case; and State Fair Community College student guests T. M. Moore and Tony Koger. They were introduced by Verl Schnepf.

The color movie will be shown Wednesday through Dec. 10 at the Fox Theater.

Businesses that have purchased tickets and will distribute them free include: Dugan's, Kim Originals, Tullis-Hall Dairy, Ed's Standard Service, Rodger's Printing, Heynen Monument, Sedalia Office Supply, State Farm Insurance, Third National Bank, Priddy's Shoes, State Fair Restaurant, Firestone, Abbas Aviation Ramada Inn, Teamster's Local 534, Skaggs, Johnson Appliance, Lorene's Card and Gift Shop, Wilken Music Co. and the Dairy Queen.

The film will be shown at 7 and 9:15 p.m. on weekdays, beginning Wednesday, with four showings on both Saturday and Sunday.

Kennedy would not support Gov. Wallace

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy says he would not support Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace for president or vice president in 1976.

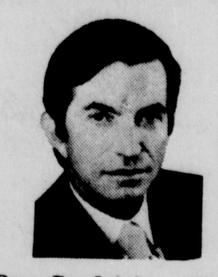

At a news conference at the University of Connecticut here Monday night, the Massachusetts Democrat said: "I will not support Mr. Wallace because I do not feel he is in the tradition and history of Democrats as I see it."

Kennedy, who announced earlier this fall that he would not seek the presidency in 1976, visited Wallace in Alabama last summer in an apparent attempt to strengthen party unity.

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

This rash is not syphilis

Dear Dr. Lamb — We are hearing so much about syphilis today, I wish you would give me a few pointers. Is old age syphilis and the syphilis young people have the same disease?

I have heard the chancre is the first sign and would that come on the buttocks, and would it come in the same place three or four times a year? Does it itch?

I have heard something about a rash, is that so?

Dear Reader — Syphilis is a contagious disease, and the same germ causes it in all age groups. Even if you are 100 and are exposed to the germ and do not have immunity you may develop the disease.

People often think of syphilis as a disease of young people, but it is important in today's free, uninhibited society to remember that age is no protection. Older people are far more active sexually than used to be appreciated. With the lessening of prejudices against older people, there have been some further changes in sexual behavior which increases the chances of venereal disease in this age group.

The chancre is the same in all ages. It is a small sore and commonly appears on the sexual organs, not the buttocks. It occurs only once in the first few weeks of the illness and does not occur again. It is painless and does not itch. If you have a rash and it itches, it is not syphilis. The rash that occurs later in untreated syphilis doesn't itch.

Some people who have had untreated syphilis develop an immunity and in effect the disease is cured by the body's own defense mechanism. These people are not likely to get syphilis again any more than you are apt to get chicken pox again, if you have already had it. They won't transmit the disease, either.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have two daughters, aged 5 and 1. My older daughter has had the smallpox vaccination. My doctor recently told me the shot was not necessary any longer. This worries me. If all children stop receiving it, isn't an outbreak of smallpox possible, as with the case of measles?

Dear Reader — The World Health Organization thinks that smallpox is on its way to being an extinct disease — the world's first example of complete disappearance of a disease from the globe.

Smallpox is dependent upon humans to survive. When the number of cases of human smallpox becomes so small the organisms can't produce enough new organisms to avoid becoming extinct. It is something like the wildlife problem. If the population gets too small for a species, they become extinct.

Even the recent outbreak of smallpox in Asia does not dampen the World Health Organization hopes. So, very soon now there should never be another outbreak of even one case of smallpox anywhere on the earth. The risk is already so small that the risk of vaccination complications is greater than that of getting the disease itself. You can stop worrying about that problem. (NEA)

"Scotty Gets His Tree", the first Official Rockwell Society collector's plate.

The Rockwell no one could get —now yours by return mail

If your order is postmarked no later than Dec. 14, 1974

We, too, have waited and had difficulty getting this most historic of all Norman Rockwell collector's plates—the official "real thing" collectors have been searching for. It seems they were delivered very slowly because of the extra handcraftsmanship, and the few plates disappeared the moment they reached the market.

But now, as the world's largest brokerage house, our Bradford Exchange has made direct arrangements for an exchange lot, and we can promise you delivery if you get your order to us in time.

The shortage has forced a strict limit of two plates per collector on all orders, but except for this restriction, we will be sure to fill your order on a first-come-first-served basis.

As you probably know, all other Rockwell first-issue plates have appreciated from 275% to 350% in as little as eight months—and this first official Rockwell Society plate is the most historic of them all. However, we will sell at issue price until this lot is sold out.

$24.50 (no shipping or handling charge)

"Scotty Gets His Tree" is like no other Rockwell plate ever made. It is the first numbered, limited edition in full-color of any kind. It is the first unpublished Rockwell ever made that preserves the design and color of his painting. It is the first ever granted the official seal of the Rockwell Society of America.

Your check or money order will be returned promptly, of course, if it arrives after the lot is exhausted.

Be sure to order before December 14, 1974.

Heisman to Griffin

NEW YORK (AP) — Archie Griffin, a speedy and powerful tailback who weaved his way to a national rushing record as the leader of Ohio State's crunching ground attack, was named winner of the 1974 Heisman Trophy today.

The fourth of seven sons of James and Margaret Griffin of Columbus, Ohio, the 5-foot-9 Griffin became only the fifth underclassman in 40 years to win the award as college football's outstanding player.

Griffin, a junior who has gained an NCAA record of 100 or more yards in 22 consecutive games and who led the nation in total rushing yardage this year, was presented as the Heisman winner at the Downtown Athletic Club.

His selection had become almost a foregone conclusion as the 185-pound runner continued his record assault throughout the 1974 season. The award now gives Griffin a chance to do what no other player has ever done—win the Heisman twice.

In becoming the 38th offensive back to win the award, Griffin completed a sensational string of performances that dates back to the opening game of the 1973 season, when he was a sophomore. Last year he placed fifth in the Heisman voting.

"I've never had a player like Arch," said Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes. "He's remarkable not only because he is the best runner we have ever had, but also because of the way he blocks and his over-all ability as an athlete. If ever anyone was deserving of the Heisman Trophy it is Archie Griffin."

In the 1974 season, Griffin, who already is the all-time Ohio State and Big Ten leading rusher, was the key to the Buckeye attack, carrying 236 times for 1,620 yards, an average of 147.3 yards a game as Ohio State posted a 10-1 record. He scored 12 touchdowns. Griffin will appear in his third consecutive Rose Bowl game on New Year's Day against Southern California.

Griffin's leading competition for the Heisman Trophy was another outstanding tailback, senior Anthony Davis of Southern California, who rushed for 1,354 yards and scored four times against Notre Dame last Saturday after most Heisman votes were cast.

Football fans will get their third chance to compare the strengths of the two swift runners in the Rose Bowl.

Miami bottles up Cincinnati

MIAMI (AP) — Paul Brown watched Miami's defending National Football League champions thrash his Cincinnati Bengals 24-3 Monday night and sighed, "They're back in the Super Bowl swing."

The Dolphins, who have been in the past three Super Bowls and won the last two, agreed.

"This was our best performance of the year," said Miami Coach Don Shula, whose 9-3 team can assure itself of its fifth straight playoff berth by beating Baltimore Sunday.

Quarterback Bob Griese, who completed 11 of 13 passes for 118 yards and threw four-yard scoring passes to Mercury Morris and Jim Mandich, said the Dolphins have the ability to excell in crucial games.

"It's nice to know when the chips are down and it's a big game, we're going to get it," said Griese.

The Dolphins' defense held the Bengals to just 66 yards rushing, 61 of the yards coming in the second half. Ken Anderson, the American Football Conference's leading passer, was held to 119 yards on 14 pass completions — 100 yards below his average.

Cincinnati's biggest scoring threat was killed in the third quarter when Anderson was tackled by linebacker Bob Heinz for no gain on fourth down at Miami's four-yard-line.

The Bengals only score came on a 29-yard field goal by Horst Muhlmann after Miami's Mercury Morris fumbled at the Dolphins' 22. It was the only flaw made by the Dolphins, who in turn recovered three of five Cincinnati fumbles.

The Dolphins got a 43-yard field goal from Garo Yepremian and ended the scoring with a two-yard run by Benny Malone in the fourth quarter.

A key factor in Miami's 30th straight win at home was the running of fullback Larry Csonka, who came back from a nagging ankle injury to total 123 yards in 24 carries.

"There wasn't much argument about that one," said Brown of the game. "We had trouble getting receivers downfield. You're allowed one check (on a receiver) and they were doing it effectively and legally."

Brown's own playoff hopes all but died with the defeat. The Bengals, 7-5, would have to win their final two games while Pittsburgh, 8-3-1, would have to lose both for Cincinnati to win in the AFC Central Division.

Hunter inducted into N.C. Hall

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Catfish Hunter of the Oakland A's, the Cy Young Award winner as the best pitcher in the American League last season, was among five inductees into the North Carolina Sports Hall of Fame Monday.

Mets deal Rusty Staub

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Although all sides are denying it, Rusty Staub apparently now is a member of the Philadelphia Phillies.

Staub, a New York Mets' outfielder for the past three seasons, is part of a three-way deal which also includes the Detroit Tigers, according to sources at baseball's annual winter meetings.

The Phillies, in turn, have sent catcher Bob Boone to the Detroit Tigers. The Mets obtained center fielder Mickey Stanley and pitcher Bill Slayback.

Staub, obtained from the Montreal Expos before the 1972 season, batted .258 with 19 home runs and 78 RBI in 1974.

With the acquisition of Stanley, the Mets hope they have ended their search for a center fielder. Stanley played in only 99 games for Detroit this past year because of a broken hand and batted .221 with eight homers and 24 RBI.

Stanley, an outstanding fielder, had lost his center field job to Ron LeFlore last season.

At the same time, the Tigers solved their catching problems with the acquisition of Boone, a veteran of two years in the majors. After hitting .261 with 10 home runs and 61 runs batted in as a rookie, he slipped to .242 with only three homers last season.

Slayback, a right-hander, appeared in just 16 games with the Tigers last season and compiled a 1-3 record and a 4.75 ERA.

Confirmation of these deals was expected today.

Major league baseball officials took up the subject of expansion today.

Washington wants Devine

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Green Bay Packer Coach Dan Devine is being sought by the University of Washington to replace retiring Coach Jim Owens, the Milwaukee Sentinel said today.

Sentinel Sports Editor Bud Lea reported "those close to the Washington scene" say Devine, who spent 16 years as a college coach before coming to Green Bay in 1971, is "the man the Huskies want."

Lea said Devine admitted talking to Washington Athletic Director Joseph Kearney, but contended the conversation involved recommending someone on the Green Bay staff for the Huskie job.

"I think that it would be breaking their confidence."

Devine said when asked whether the subject of him returning to college coaching was discussed.

Devine has compiled a 25-25-4 record at Green Bay after posting marks of 27-3-1 in three years at Arizona State and 93-37-7 in 13 years at Missouri. He is on the fourth year of a five year contract at Green Bay and the team's executive committee is expected to review his status at the end of this season.

"I've put four hard years in building this club," Devine said. "We've got too good a ball club coming back next year for me to be thinking about anything else at this point."

Three MU football aides won't return

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The University of Missouri athletic department announced today that contracts of three assistant football coaches would not be renewed next year.

The three are Ron Snyder, Jim Anderson and Bob Warmack.

Mel Sheehan, MU athletic director, said in a statement released here the action was a result of "season's end evaluation of University of Missouri programs and staff, and expressed personal preferences. . . ."

Snyder and Anderson are former MU linemen and Warmack played quarterback for the University of Oklahoma.

Sheehan and MU head coach Al Onofrio were in Kansas City today for a Big Eight conference meeting and were not available for comment.

Snyder, 30, coached interior defensive linemen for four years at Missouri. Anderson, 27, was a freshman and junior varsity coach for three years. Warmack, 27, has been the quarterback coach for three years.

Missouri finished 7-4 the past two years. This year's Tiger team finished 5-2 in the conference and tied for second with Nebraska.

Big 8 basketball

Tigers topple Rice

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Iowa State, with a 1-0 record, goes to Bradley in tonight's only Big Eight Conference basketball activity.

The Cyclones, who made their debut under new Coach Ken Trickey, launched their season last week with a 99-61 triumph over Mankato State.

If Iowa State defeats Bradley, the Cyclones will join Kansas and Missouri in the 2-0 club. The seventh-ranked Jayhawks got their second victory Monday night, outclassing Augustana of South Dakota 85-50 while Missouri was trampling Rice 92-67.

Oklahoma, after losing its opener, broke into the victory column with an 89-71 decision over Northeast Missouri State. Oklahoma State wasn't so fortunate, losing 74-67 to 11th-ranked Alabama. The Cowboys are now 1-1.

Danny Knight and Rick Suttle paced the Jayhawks. Knight, relieving Suttle at center, made 16 points. Suttle, who sparkled in the earlier going, contributed 13.

Kansas Coach Ted Owens substituted freely in both halves. The Jayhawks, blending solid offense with defense, took charge quickly and were never headed. Ten Kansas players connected for points.

Missouri, shooting 53.8 per cent from the floor, took a 20-point lead over Rice early in the second half. Steve Dangos fired in 19 points and junior college transfer Willie Smith 14. Between them, they made 26 of Missouri's 42 points in the first half.

Alvan Adams staged the big show for Oklahoma. He hit 27 points, bringing his total for two games to 59 points. After Northeast Missouri jumped out front 2-0, the Sooners cut loose behind Adams and built up a 17-point lead. They led 44-27 at the half.

Alabama had to play an uphill game to beat the Cowboys. Twice in the first half, O-State led by five points but the Tide rallied and took a 38-37 intermission advantage.

Olus Holder, a freshman forward, tossed in 20 points for the Cowboys, and teammate Andy Hopson grabbed 18 rebounds and scored 15 points.

Don Fambrough

Don Fambrough quits at K.U

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Don Fambrough has resigned as head football coach at the University of Kansas.

The 52-year-old coach, who guided the Jayhawks the last four years, submitted his resignation Monday and announced it publicly Tuesday morning.

The end of Fambrough's regime was confirmed Monday night after day-long speculation touched off by the coach's absence from the Big Eight Conference coaches' meetings in Kansas City.

"It was a tough decision to make," Fambrough said. "We're pretty close here to having something good going but I just had to make a decision at this time."

No announcement was made immediately as to Fambrough's successor. However, there was immediate speculation that if the new coach doesn't come from outside the school, Jim Dickey may get the post.

Dickey came to Kansas from Oklahoma two years ago as Fambrough's head assistant. He has specialized in defense, one he developed at Oklahoma.

Gale Sayers, former Kansas great who starred for the Chicago Bears, said flatly he did not want the job. He is now at the university as assistant to the Williams Education Fund director.

Fambrough hinted that health problems were the reason for his action.

"I guess I've had it," Fambrough said. "I've had the course. First, it was ulcers and now this. Have you ever heard of Shingles?" Well, that's that the doctor says I've got. It's a nerve condition. I've been taking medication for it."

Fambrough called his players together Monday afternoon and told them of his action. The players were stunned.

Ken Saathoff, a star wide receiver, said:

"We seniors were his boys. We were the first ones he recruited. He stuck with us. Now that we're leaving, I'm sure he feels he has done his job."

Strong safety Kurt Knoff said, "Everybody just sat there in a daze after he announced it . . ."

Kansas failed to live up to Fambrough's expectations the past season, losing seven, including the final six games, and winning only four. The team finished in a tie for last place in the Big Eight.

The highlight of the season was Kansas' 21-10 victory over then fifth-ranked Texas A&M Oct. 5.

During Fambrough's stay as head coach, his teams all had 4-7 marks except the 1973 club led by star quarterback Dave Jaynes, who was named to the All-American team. That season, the Jayhawks finished 7-3-1 and then lost to North Carolina State 31-18 in the Liberty Bowl.

The Jayhawks finished 18th in the nation in 1973, and most of the club's defense returned this year. Fambrough, before the season started, said Kansas would have one of the best defenses in the nation and predicted the Jayhawks would finish second in the conference.

Fambrough was captain of the 1947 Kansas team that tied for the league title and played in the Orange Bowl. He was voted by Kansas fans to the school's all-time team three years ago in recognition of his performance at offensive guard, linebacker and placekicker.

Fambrough started his college career as a freshman at Texas in 1941 and was a blocking back on the single wing Texas team coached by Dana X. Bible in 1942. Texas won the Southwest Conference crown that year and defeated Georgia Tech in the Cotton Bowl.

During the war years, Fambrough played on an Air Force team at Salt Lake City and with the Second Air Force team at Colorado Springs, Colo. Ray Evans, who also played at Colorado Springs, talked Fambrough into enrolling at Kansas.

K-State preview

Hartman confident in young Wildcats

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — The Kansas State basketball team will be young this season but Coach Jack Hartman thinks the Wildcats may be better than most people predict.

Two of the reasons are Chuckie Williams, a junior, and Mike Evans, a freshman.

Williams may be the best shooter Hartman has ever coached. Evans is the quickest player on the Wildcat squad.

"We'll be small as basketball teams go," asserts Hartman. "We have all kinds of problems but I think we'll be a good team sometime during the season and as soon as possible might help.

"This bunch has a lot of character. They're good competitors. Williams has come a long way on defense, leadership and ball handling. I think Evans will be an outstanding player some day."

One of Hartman's problems undoubtedly is to fill the role vacated by Lon Kruger, the fiery little guard who averaged 17.6 points a game last season. Also missing are the other four starters, Danny Beard, Dean Harris, Larry Williams and Gene McVey.

Hartman has only one senior on the squad, Doug Snider, whose average output last year was under five points. However, the Wildcats have four other lettermen in addition to Snider and Williams—Carl Gerlach, Jim Molinari, Darryl Winston and Bobby Noland.

"Snider and Winston look like they're going to be solid performers at the forwards," Hartman says. "It looks like Gerlach has the center position all to himself. He's not a powertype player. Nor are Snider and Winston. That's going to be a problem. What might get us in the end is just lack of muscle inside."

The Wildcats were 11-3 in the Big Eight Conference last season and 19-8 over-all. These records left them in second place behind Kansas, and K-State could hardly be expected to finish so high during the new season.

It's for certain, the Wildcats will find out pretty quickly how they are going to fare. They play Arizona State, Arizona and Houston, all on the road, just prior to the Big Eight preseason tournament in late December.

Hartman says, "It will take a lot of patience. This is the least experience we've ever had."

Cardinals take chance on 9-16 minor-leaguer

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals have decided to take a chance on Bill Parsons, a 6-foot-6 right-hander who flopped last season with a 9-16 record in the minor leagues.

A spokesman for the Cardinals, who made the deal Monday at baseball's winter meetings in New Orleans, said the gamble stems from Parsons' performances in 1971 and 1972.

Originally property of the Seattle Pilots in 1968, Parsons toiled two seasons in the minors before posting a 13-17 record in 1971 for the Milwaukee Brewers of the American League.

He improved the record to 13-13 with a 3.91 earned average in 1972, then fell off to 3-6 in 1973 and 9-16 last season for Sacramento and Tucson of the Pacific Coast League.

"Anytime you can get a 26-year-old pitcher with a good arm for cash it's worth taking a chance," Cards General Manager Bing Devine said.

The amount paid by the Cards to the Oakland A's for Parsons was not disclosed.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

If you only have to win one finesse, then it is clear that two finesses are better than one. One finesse is an even-money proposition. One finesse out of two makes the odds in your favor just over three to one.

South Analyzed the six of spades lead as fourth best from a four, five or six-card suit. He Counted a lot of winning tricks for himself, if he could set up his clubs. Unfortunately for that purpose, he was going to run out of time. West would get his spades set up first.

He Counted only four losers in case the spades were going to break 4-4 but he knew that a suit breaks 4-4 only about 33 per cent of the time.

He Counted eight top winners for himself and saw that he could score a ninth, if he finessed successfully for the queen of hearts. That 50 per cent chance was certainly better than a 33 per cent one. But he finally saw a better play

He led his nine of hearts and let it ride. It forced East's queen and South had his ninth trick. Suppose it had lost to the 10?

Then South would still have the finesse against the queen left.

♥♦CARD Sense♠♣

The bidding has been: 3

West	North	East	South
		1♠	Dble
Pass	2♠	Pass	3♥
Pass	4♥	Pass	?

You, South, hold:

♠ 4 3 ♥ A Q 10 8 6 ♦ K J 4 ♣ A Q 3

What do you do now?

A—Just pass. Your partner has made a very strong bid, but he is satisfied with game and with two little spades, you should be also. Remember his two-spade cue bid did not guarantee any spade control at all.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding four hearts your partner has bid three spades over your three hearts. What do you do now?

At wit's end

The unexplored

By ERMA BOMBECK

No one is more thrilled than I that movies are finally getting around to entertaining us with national disasters like floods, hurricanes and earthquakes.

The animals were beginning to get on my nerves. Oh, the Disney movies were harmless enough with Flipper laughing out loud when you fell out of the boat, and Gentle Ben smelling up the house with his bad breath, and Joy Adamson in Born Free running through 8,000 miles of game preserve and throwing her arms around just the right lion. (I've had my luggage eight years and still have to check the claim ticket.)

But then things got out of hand. Next thing you know little kids were teaching rats to kill on command. Birds were scaring Tippi Hedren half to death by aiming for her eyes. Snakes were taking over submarines which could demoralize a Navy. Frogs started to eat the theater patrons. Flies threatened to take over political parties and locusts were having New Jersey for lunch.

I became so suspicious of animals that one day at a picnic an ant scurried under a rock and I clubbed him to death with a tire iron just to make sure he didn't turn on me.

The only drawback I can see to bringing disasters to the screen is that we are limited. As I see it, there are possibly only 9 natural calamities: earthquakes, tidal waves, floods, hurricanes, volcanic eruptions, tornados, cyclones, typhoons and avalanches. I mean, how many times can Hollywood scare you to death by having you come face to face with Shelley Winters in a wet suit?

American theater goers have become immune to fear. We are going to have to do better than to have the theater move while showing Charlton Heston during an earthquake.

To me, there are national disasters that haven't been explored yet.

How about a movie showing a 47-year-old woman being told by her obstetrician that she is expecting?

Or a man who is signing the papers on a $150,000 dream house and notices a termite just ate the pencil?

Or the man who discovers his septic tank is under his swimming pool?

Now that makes your flesh crawl.

Special meeting is set by council

The City Council announced a special meeting for 7 p.m. Monday to discuss the future plans of the Sedalia airport.

The meeting was prompted by discussion at Monday's precouncil meeting in which the Airport Board met with the City Council.

Board President Lou Tempel told the council the airport board needs some kind of direction for future projects at the airport.

"Originally the council gave us $37,500 toward the construction of tie-downs, aprons, fencing and lighting of the airport which would be linked to a new maintenance facility. This money would be matched on a four-to-one basis with the federal government," Tempel said.

"However the latest cost estimates show that we will now have to come up with $83,000 to match the government's over $300,000 for the project, due to inflation," Tempel said.

Tempel also told the council that the Federal Aviation Administration should be informed if the city wants a maintenance and-or terminal facility added to the airport.

"That $83,000 which they will match would depend on a facility which we have been discussing for quite a while and would now cost approximately $250,000 to build," Tempel said. The facility would be a maintenance hangar with limited terminal facilities.

Fourth Ward Councilman Robert Eidson asked the board if it had studied the needs or possible revenue the city could generate by expanding air facilities, "such as air freight and commercial service."

Tempel said no such study has been made, but some companies do use the airport and more would use it if adequate service facilities were constructed.

"If industry looks at Sedalia they may require more airport services than we presently have. But we do need some direction by the council so that if we need to apply for federal funds, we can start on the paperwork," Tempel said.

Ann Landers

Girl has no problem retaining virginity

Dear Ann Landers: I am a reasonably attractive, sensible girl, age 18, and in college. My friends consider me vivacious and fun to be with. I am a virgin and have every intention of remaining so until marriage.

I'm writing about my boyfriend, but it is HIS problem and I'm not going to let him make it MINE. He says he loves me and that I'm torturing him to death because he needs more action.

"H" happens to be very good-looking, bright, knows all the right words, and is accustomed to getting what he wants. But the fact that he can't get it from me is driving him crackers.

I'm not writing for advice, Ann. I don't need any. I'm just hoping you will print my letter so others out there like me will know they don't have to give a guy everything he asks for. And I'm not afraid of losing him either. I've already told him to shove off if the "torture" gets too much for him, but he still sticks like flypaper. — In Tact

Dear In: Sounds as if you've got it all together, honey. Cheers! A letter like yours is a real day-brightener. (Are you listening, students?)

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I were married young, but we were very much in love and I was sure it was the thing to do.

We now have four children (the oldest is 10) and I never thought our marriage was anything but happy. He never complained about anything and our children are truly beautiful. My husband has always had more freedom than most men. I've never nagged or questioned him and his home was his palace — or so I thought.

Now for the shocker: Three weeks ago he told me out of a clear blue sky that he wants his freedom — no reason, except that he married too young (we were both 19) and now that he's just turned 30, he feels he must be allowed to "try his wings."

Where did I fail? — Lonely And Heartsick

Dear L.: You didn't fail. Your husband did. He failed to grow up and accept the responsibilities of marriage.

After 11 years and four children, it's a fine time to discover he has "untried wings."

My guess is that after a little high flying, his wings will get tired and he'll turn into a homing pigeon.

Don't make the dumb mistake of giving him a divorce. Insist on separate maintenance. And if you're smart, you'll leave him alone until he gets his head screwed on straight (with apologies to Herb Klein).

Dear Ann Landers: Can you use one more letter on a Night Owl who is married to a Morning Canary? It CAN work because we've been happy together for 32 years. The secret is to have respect for one another's Prime Time.

I am nearly 60 years old and my peak efficiency is between midnight and 9 a.m. I have to be at work at 5:00 a.m. and the air is beautiful at that hour of the morning. I am also proud that at my age I can accomplish things when most folks are laid out. Of course, when I fold up at 4:00 p.m. some people laugh and make bum jokes, but I don't mind. Someone has to take care of the world during those odd hours.

I wonder how many people realize what goes on while most of the world sleeps? Tell 'em, Ann. Oddballs like me help keep the wheels going 'round. — Owl From Minnesota

Dear Owl: I wouldn't call you an oddball. You sound great. The world needs Nocturnals as well as Diurnals. Bless you, Dad.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers's booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 35 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Busy bakery

London housewives laugh and joke as they stand in line outside a bread shop in Old Kent Road, London, as a strike by bakers reduced bread supplies to a trickle. It is estimated that by Wednesday bread will be in very short supply as only small, private bake houses will be operating. The strike by the 33,000 members of the Bakers Union was called in an attempt to get a higher basic salary.

Robber frees hostages

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A would-be robber who wanted to go home for Christmas released five hostages unharmed and surrendered after police agreed to fly his mother here from Dallas, Tex.

John L. Gilliam, 26, was booked Monday for investigation of robbery, kidnap and burglary. Raymond J. Tompkins, 25, an alleged accomplice, was arrested earlier after unsuccessfully posing as a released hostage. He was booked on the same charges.

Marie Maxwell, Gilliam's sister, said in a telephone interview from Texas that Gilliam's parole officer from a previous robbery conviction had refused to let him go to Dallas for Christmas.

"It would have been the first time in 20 years the whole family — seven brothers and two sisters — would have been together for Christmas," she said.

She said Gilliam, a Vietnam veteran, hadn't seen his mother, Louise Gilliam, in three years.

"Those weren't the best laid plans of mice and men right from the beginning," Police Inspector Tim Casey said of the bungled holdup and standoff at Petrini Plaza Market near the Golden Gate Park Panhandle. "The whole thing blew up in their face."

Casey said the pair's first goof was to tell store guard Chico Garcia to "act natural" after he was forced to open the door by two men wearing ski masks. Garcia went instead to the front office and told the secretary to call police.

The pair, armed with two .38-caliber pistols, took seven early morning supermarket workers hostage and held them in a boiler room to wait for an employe with the combination to the safe.

$1 million contract for Bob Griese

MIAMI (AP) — Quarterback Bob Griese has signed a long-term contract for an estimated $1 million with the Miami Dolphins.

"In my opinion it's as good a contract as any quarterback ever signed," said Dolphin President Joe Robbie, who concluded negotiations shortly before Miami's 24-3 victory over the Cincinnati Bengals Monday night.

The signing was announced Monday night but the terms were not disclosed.

Although team officials would not disclose the length of the contract, recent player contracts on the squad have been for five years.

Griese, 29, is in his eighth pro season.

Robbie said negotiations have been going on since teammates Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick and Paul Warfield signed a three-year World Football League contract estimated at $3.3 million.
